

TRINITY NEWS

The Greeks who came to see Jesus at the festival in the Gospel according to John are not unusual. Seeking a glimpse of Jesus, maybe they wanted to see what sort of person has caused all the stir. Maybe they wanted to see if the spark and purpose of life within themselves would be rekindled in a conversation. It seems instead of meeting on a surface level, Jesus begins to prepare everyone for that they will no longer see him as he is now. So he speaks about the transformation of his death. "Very truly, I tell you, unless a grain of wheat falls into the earth and dies, it remains just a single grain; but if it dies, it bears much fruit." I wonder if this was enough to satisfy the life searching Greeks? Jesus is moving towards the paradox of the cross. Soon if you want to see Jesus, you will need to look with eyes of faith, trusting in the miracle of God, the same God who created a miraculous world where the letting go of single grain can bring forth a whole field of new life.

In prayer,
Fr. Peter
